ABOUT

Combined, biking and paddle sports are America's most popular and environmentally responsible sports.

More than 140 million Americans make it part of their daily lives - adding over $170 billion annually to the economy.

The cross-over rate is 92% which means that nearly everybody who bikes also has a paddle craft. And vice-versa.

B&P Magazine/Club and its members have a vested interest in protecting the environment. We have made a significant commitment to doing our part in delivering timely articles, covering and promoting sustainable events, and teaming up with businesses that promote clean waterways and backcountry trail systems -- and highlight the growing problem of plastics.

We also hold companies accountable who practice GREENWASHING -- a concept of preying on the uninformed consumer in order to hand out false expectations of their sustainability statement.

"We won't solve the climate crisis unless we solve the misinformation crisis."
